WAS RULE OR RUIN

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Madison, Wis., July 17.—This morning's session of the state convention was a half hour in convening. It was fully 2:25 before Chairman Bancroft rapped for order. He announced that nominations were in order and under the rule adopted that nominations be made on roll call of congressional districts for each office.

Whitehead Nominated
This placed the name of Senator John M. Whitehead of Janesville first on the list and his name was presented to the convention as candidate for Governor by his law partner, A. E. Matheson. In an eloquent speech, his reference to Senator Spooner brought forth only mild applause. His speech will be found on page 8.

La Follette Named
Herb Chynoweth, of Madison, friend and classmate of La Follette, then placed the name of Robert M. La Follette in nomination in a well chosen and carefully prepared speech. He declared that party principles were greater than any one man, a sentiment meant to uphold the action of the resolutions committee last night.

There were a dozen or more short strong speeches for Governor La Follette and two or three of them from Milwaukee and Rock counties.

Rowdy Politics
When Senator O'Neill, of Bayfield, seconded Whitehead's nomination, an attempt was made to shout him down but he refused to be silenced. "You own the convention and have had your say, and now I propose to have mine," he said. He made a ringing speech for Whitehead.

Informal Ballot
It was nearly 11 o'clock when the informal ballot to nominate the candidate for governor was reached. It was taken by counties and resulted: La Follette, 790; Whitehead, 266; Scofield, 5; Froelich, 3.

La Follette the Nominee
The ballot was made formal and Governor La Follette was declared the nominee and a committee of five was appointed to bring him before the convention. The committee included two Stalwart members, General F. F. Winkler and E. L. Phillips of Milwaukee, the others being J. H. Stout, O. H. Munson and J. C. Kerwin. While waiting for the Governor, nominations were proceeded with. A. M. Long, presented the name of Jas. O. Davidson for Lieutenant Governor.

Governor Accepts
At just 12 m. Governor La Follette was brought before the convention and in an eloquent speech accepted the nomination. The Governor was greeted with the University yell many times repeated and repeated cheers.

Davidson Chosen
A motion for Davidson's nomination by acclamation was defeated and L. Bodin, of Milwaukee presented the name of August Luedke, of Milwaukee as a Stalwart candidate for lieutenant governor. The ballot resulted in Davidson's nomination by about the same vote as that for governor.

No Bolting
The session today was in marked contrast to the tumultuous scenes as during the contest on the Spooner endorsement resolution last evening. The Stalwarts have accepted defeat with the best grace possible. No more talk of a bolt is heard and they will content themselves with voting solidly to get her to the end.

Convention Adjourns
At the conclusion of the Governor's speech of acceptance recess was taken to 2 o'clock when nominations of secretary of state and other officers were taken up.

Houser or Flint
The convention did not get together until 2:30 this afternoon when the nominations for secretary of state were taken up. The names of W. L. Houser, Mondovi; J. R. Farr, Phillips; and R. J. Flint, Menomonie, were presented. Surprise was sprung when ex-Assemblyman Cady, who was to have presented the name of Farr, announced his withdrawal from the race leaving the contest between Houser and Flint.

QUESADA ENTERS EXCLUSIVE CLUB

Cuban Minister Admitted to Metropolitan Club in Which He Was Once Blackballed.

Washington, D. C., July 17.—(Special.)—Senator Quesada, Cuban minister to the United States has at last become a member of the exclusive Metropolitan club. In a measure this is a victory for Senator Quesada, in that his name was proposed for membership in this club several years ago, when he represented struggling Cuba and was at the head of the junta movement in America, and he received more than one black ball.

Refused Once
It was claimed that not being the official attaché of a government represented in this country, and having no official status of his own, he could not be admitted. Now, as minister from another country, Senator Quesada's name was proposed by a friend and the governors of the club at once accepted him as a member under the rule entering diplomats.

Noted Club
In some respects the Metropolitan club of Washington is the most noted club in America. Its list of membership contains the names of more men of national reputation and more noted foreigners than any other club.

STRANGE MOVES

May Be Preliminary to Another Bull Raid on the Market.

GATES IN THE MOVE

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Chicago, July 17.—July corn again made some erratic jumps this morning and went up three points and a half in a few minutes after the opening. It opened at 65 1-2 and jumped to 63 at the start. It wavered about this point for some time and then closed at 65 1-4 a quarter of a cent lower than the opening price.

Gates Crowd
The Gates-Harris brokers took part in the pushing the price up and with the advance word was passed around that the big Gates deal had not yet closed and that some of the shorts had this morning been forced to make heavy settlements.

He engaged in medical practice in Herscher, but became violently insane there on May 20, and a few days later was committed to Elgin. The assigned cause of Dr. Enos' malady was a physical injury of fifteen years' standing. Dr. Enos was a graduate of Rush Medical college and 35 years old.

CUBA MAY AID CANE GROWING

Senate Considers a $4,000,000 Loan, Also Bounty on Cows.

Havana, July 17.—The senate, after some discussion, appointed a committee to decide whether the agricultural and cattle industries in Cuba need assistance and if so to recommend means to aid them.

A loan of $4,000,000 to assist cane growers was proposed and it was also suggested that a bounty of $5 be paid for each cow imported into the island.

Some of the senators object to the proposed loan on the ground that it would not solve the economic difficulty in Cuba. Some consider that the money would be wasted, while others believe the loan essential to the assistance of the cane growers.

DECIDE ON FRIDAY

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)
Indianapolis, July 17.—From the preliminary talk at the meeting of the mine workers in this city, will be no general strike declared. The convention was called to order this morning and the subject of a strike of the bituminous coal miners to aid the anthracite men was brought up for discussion.

No Action Today
It is not expected that any action will be taken today on this question but that the vote will be taken tomorrow after a thorough discussion of the matter. Present indications point to a gathering of a large relief fund to aid the strikers instead of striking themselves.

Opposed To Strike

The delegates are opposed to striking and think that Pennsylvania can be saved by radical action but that in other states all would be lost. They much prefer to raise a strike fund to continue the Pennsylvania situation rather than go out themselves.

GEN. SMITH IS CENSURED AND RETIRED FROM ARMY

Punished for the "Kill and Burn" Order Issued to Maj. Waller, Who Is Rebuked.

Washington, July 17.—President Roosevelt has censured Gen. Jacob H. Smith and retired him from the active list of the army in punishment for the "kill and burn" order issued to Major Waller. The president has also incidentally censured Major Waller. In reviewing the findings of the court-martial which tried Gen. Smith, who is known in the army as "Hell Roaring" Jake Smith, the president makes it plain that as long as he has anything to say about it, torture, barbarity and tactics of uncivilized warfare will not be countenanced in the American army. Officers weak enough to resort to cruelty in the treatment of prisoners or foes will find it no excuse to plead provocation. The good name of the army must be maintained, whether operating 8,000 miles from home or on the frontier.

Most officers appreciate the responsibilities entrusted to them and have conducted themselves with credit to the service. Those who have been greatly exasperated by the methods of the Filipinos and have weakened sufficiently to attempt retaliation are to be punished. The president insists that the honor of the American army must be kept unsullied.

Medical Service in Russian Army.

In the Russian army there is no medical corps existing as a distinct unit, although each combatant unit owns a small medical personnel. On account of the breadth of territory and the still incomplete railway development, military sanitary convoys exist and an elaborate organization of divisional and mobile field hospitals.

WOOD'S INTEREST NOT FOR AMBITION

Is Advising President Roosevelt for Sanitary Good of the Isthmus of Panama.

Washington, D. C., July 17.—(Special.)—Information received here from reliable sources throws an entirely different light on reports from Oyster Bay that President Roosevelt was thinking of directing Brig. General Wood to take charge of American affairs on the Isthmus of Panama during the construction of the Panama canal.

Sanitary Expert
Gen. Wood is much interested in the canal from a sanitary standpoint, and he has urged upon the President the importance of sending to the Isthmus an expert in sanitary engineering to carry out arrangements for the better protection of those engaged in building this great waterway, and also to provide means for the improving of the health conditions in the strip through which the canal will run.

Hygienic Interest
General Wood's interest in this matter comes from the fact that he is a physician as well as a soldier. It is understood that he does not care for the assignment himself. The Oyster Bay stories are said to have emanated probably from imperfect knowledge of what General Wood has been telling the president about the importance of improving the Isthmus from the standpoint of hygiene.

SPOONER MUST BOW WAY DOWN

So Says the La Follette Element in the State Convention.

DIRECT INSULTS

Endorsed by Machine with Humiliating Resolutions—Minority Report Ignored.

DESPOTIC POWER

(By Staff Correspondent.)
Madison, Wis., July 16.—Just before the adjournment this afternoon after ex-Governor Hoard had finished telling his story W. H. Babcock of Oshkosh mounted the platform and everyone looked for a speech. Instead of that he sang a song of several stanzas, using remarkable articulation that brought his argument as clearly as a speech would have. The drift of it was that discord should have no place in the republican party. After this a motion of adjournment until 8:00 p. m., when the committee on resolutions would be prepared to make a report was carried.

The Third Session

The third session of the convention was called to order by Judge Bancroft at 8:15. While Secretary Edmonds of the committee on resolutions approached that section which indorses Senator Spooner the suspense was painful. As he progressed it was necessary to stop reading several times as the audience vented their appreciation of the sentiments in prolonged cheers, but more thoughtful faces grew sober as they realized how binding was the "string" attached to the indorsement.

Minority Report

When M. J. Wallrich of Shawano county took the platform and submitted a minority report which gave an unqualified endorsement to the Senator the previous demonstrations were tame in comparison with that which followed. When he came to his own closing remarks dealing with harmony in the party, men began to lean to their neighbors and whisper with conviction, "that's sense." The point of order raised by E. E. Brown of Waupaca, objecting to the speaker's holding of the floor was rudely interrupted by cries of "Down Down," and the speech was ended by a silence on the part of the bulk of the house that was stronger than cheers.

Debate Opens

J. J. Brennan then opened the debate with a series of aphorisms and axiomatic Republicanisms and the crowd was of course wild with the sentiments expressed. But as he progressed and plunged into blind generalities it was difficult to grasp the trend of his argument, the uproar subsided and the blaze of bombastic rhetoric, with which Mr. Brennan closed was responsible for the applause which followed as he took his seat.

Balk Speeches

From that time on through the debate, cat calls, hisses, cheers of wild approval and the whole gamut of political rooting methods constantly balked the speakers in their efforts to present their arguments to the house.

Vote Called For

At length, after a prolonged debate in which several gentlemen indulged in bitter personalities and scantly veiled innuendoes the question was called for and the district chairman was directed to secure the votes by counties, preparatory to a general roll call.

Storm of Contention

The signers of this minority report that had precipitated a storm of contention such as has rarely been equaled in convention halls of the state were F. J. Warlick of Shawano, who presented the amendment and General F. C. Winkler, of Milwaukee and L. A. Williams of Fond du Lac, the first two of whom took the platform in support of their position.

After considerable delay the result of the motion made by M. J. Wallrich for the acceptance of the minority report was announced by the secretary of the convention, Zeno M. Host as follows: Aye, 353 1-2; No, 769 1-2; and the motion was declared lost.

Amendment Offered

As soon as the result of the ballot had been announced General Winkler of Milwaukee arose and read a short amendment to the minority report supplementing the reading by a brief review of arguments for its adoption.

This Is Lost

The amendment was lost by acclamation and the question of the adoption of the report of the committee on resolutions was put and carried. An adjournment until 9:00 o'clock on Thursday morning was moved and lost, after which the motion to proceed to the nominations for governor was carried.

Talk Against Time

Proceedings were momentarily intensified by A. R. Hall of Dunn county who desired that the vote for the adoption of the majority report be reconsidered and an aye and no ballot be taken in order that the exact sentiment of the body known.

A vote on the motion to reconsider

MACHINE MEN ARE NOT ALL PLEASED

MANY OF THEM DISSATISFIED

Talk Is Rife That La Follette Has Tripped Himself in the Spooner Affair.

(By Staff Correspondent.)
When the machine men had clearly and definitely showed their hand in their barefaced sacrifice of Spooner at the Wednesday evening session of the convention every one breathed more freely. One thing at least had been gained. Everyone knew just where the LaFollette following stood on the endorsement of the Wisconsin senator, and just how much truth there was in the oft repeated statement that the Stalwarts were not alone in their support of Spooner.

Want Them to Bolt
The action taken on this point gave unmistakable evidence of the purpose of the Governor's friends to, if possible, force the friends of Whitehead and Spooner, to bolt the convention and the party. This was made doubly clear when an eye and no ballot was called for to show how strongly the majority resolutions were adopted, although there was in this an indirect purpose of killing time until the morning when the governor and his nominator might make their little speeches under more favorable oratorical conditions.

Some Displeased
It was welcome to know that there were some of the elder and more thoughtful members of the Governor's party who deeply regretted the action that had been forced by "Bob's" attitude toward the Senator, and had been supported by the young men who made up the bulk of the delegates. For the convention was preeminently a young man's convention. A smaller proportion than ever before were the veterans of Wisconsin politics and the majority who influenced the vote were the young men who were attending their first state convention.

Talk It Over
Knots of the old campaign horses of the LaFolletteites gathered together in the Park hotel and at their respective lodging places after the session was adjourned and talked it over. This morning the first word heard was on the same subject, and as time goes on the young politicians will come to see more clearly what irreparable harm they have done to Spooner, the state and the party. And not the least part of the evil effects of the vote of last night will come direct upon themselves, so say some of these cooler heads.

Are Ashamed
Some express themselves as out and out ashamed of their factionism, ashamed of the spirit that prompted the repudiation of a man of character and service so infinitely above the average, ashamed of the faction that would allow itself to be governed by such motives, and ashamed of themselves for being drawn into the current of feeling enough to vote to kill the majority report.

Regret Expressed
There are those who already regret the action which they themselves supported, if the talk of the men who coolly talked the situation over after the vote had been taken and decided is to be relied upon. However, they may feel on the Spooner question themselves, there is a half-breed element that is of the opinion that the action of the third session in regard to the resolutions will prove a boom-arang to the half breeds and will miss their intended prey, the Stalwarts.

Must Rule
There can be no room for doubt on the attitude of the LaFollette element toward the Whitehead people. They are willing to have harmony but they want it by themselves with no interference from the other faction. They are willing to have a Republican party, but they want it to be a tight LaFollette Republican. If there is anyone who doesn't like that kind of Republicanism he can go. And the expression of the convention last evening was tantamount to a request to the stalwarts to take their clothes and go.

Will Stand By Party
There was no expression among the Stalwarts Wednesday evening that might be taken in any way indicating a purpose to forsake the Republican party. While there were of course those who immediately took fire and stood ready to bolt, it was only the more hot-headed who expressed that sentiment and the bulk of the Whitehead men strongly seconded his own sentiment as he left for Madison two days ago. "I am a Republican and will stand by my party."

To Open Dramatic Studio
Frederick Paulding, a Milwaukee actor of note, who has been seen in this city, will establish the Frederick Paulding studio of oratory and dramatic expression in Milwaukee next September. Students in the oratorical department will give two invitation recitals to their friends, during the winter season and in the dramatic department two plays will be given by the private pupils and one by each of the classes. These performances will be given publicly that managers may note the ability of students.

Lesson in Politeness.
The oldest boy is a treasure, but in trying to be polite he sometimes slips up. The father of this lad had reared him to be always courteous to his elders. On going to a distant school his father had told him to telegraph home "Yes" if he found everything satisfactory and arrived safely. He did so, but the busy father had forgotten the arrangement, so, being puzzled, he telegraphed back: "Yes, what?" The answer came back: "Yes, sir."

How a Town's Name Was Made.
Few persons know how the new town Donora was given its name. It is simple enough. The first syllable is part of the name of W. H. Mellon, the wife of one of those heavily interested in the town and steel company.

was called for by districts. The result was as follows: Ayes, 696; Noes, 346; and the question was declared carried.

Didn't Know Plans
At about this stage in the game Chairman Bancroft exhibited a slight lack of conversancy with the wish of the La Folletteites in attempting to block the reconsideration of the vote. When it dawned on him that "Bob" was probably not overanxious to display his oratory in a speech of acceptance at that hour of the evening, it was 10:30 by this time and no nominations had yet been made, the chairman was enthusiastic over the idea of taking the ayes and no ballot. It effectually served the purpose of killing time.

Kill Time
The next step in slaughtering the hours before the convention should grow weary was to take the vote on the original question of the adoption of the committee resolutions by counties. The ballots scored as follows: Ayes 768; Noes, 279; and the resolutions were declared adopted. The Ashland county chairman stated that under their instructions it would be impossible for them to vote on the question. The convention adjourned until 9:00 a. m. Thursday.

HOARD TELLS STORIES

Helps Convention Kill Time at Afternoon Session
Gymnasium, Madison, July 16, 4 p. m.—All predictions regarding the temperature during the convention were fulfilled when the hour of the adjourned session drew near. Many persons fearing lest it would be impossible to obtain seating had remained in the hall for hours. By four o'clock every seat was taken save a few reserved for the delegates and some of the special guests of honor who were to be located on the stage. After that hour standing room was at a premium.

The Sentinel newsboys had added to their stock of papers a supply of palm leaves bearing the legend: "Read the Sentinel and Keep cool." At first one was thrown in with each paper purchased and then the demand became so great for some artificial coolness that the fans were sold as a separate enterprise. These served in a degree to mitigate the torrid atmosphere but even at that the heat was intolerable.

The majority of the 1,065 delegates did not wear shirt waists and some so far departed from the etiquette de rigueur as to forget to put on their belts before coming to the meeting. These little technicalities however, did nothing to hinder by far the largest part of the body from peeling their coats unceremoniously and sitting in their shirt sleeves with rivulets of perspiration dripping from the protruding portions of their faces.

Ike Himself
"Ike" Stephenson, seated on the platform amused himself while waiting for the gavel of the presiding officer by waiting little breezes of air against a fly which was careening madly about on the polished pate of the journalist who was seated before him. When the latter, attracted by the gale of wind turned about for an explanation, Mr. Stephenson told the story of the man who used to drive all-molesting flies to one spot on his head and then destroy them at a single destructive blow.

Tedious Delay
After the session was called to order and there came an tedious delay while waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions, the house attempted to stir up a little interest. A falling window shade attracted some attention and one or two sallies passed through the house.

Want Hoard
Then someone called for Hoard. The cry was taken up but there was no response until Earle Driver of Racine moved that it be the sentiment of the meeting that the ex-Governor be asked to give one of his stories. The motion was seconded and before there was time to put it to the house the request was granted.

Hoard's Story
"You're a sweaty crowd for a dry man to address," were his opening words. "This story," he said, "can and may furnish some matter for contemplation in connection with the present political situation."

"It happened in the University of Edinburgh that a message came one day bearing the tidings that a distinguished Chinese professor of sign language was to come to that institution and desired a conversation with the professor of sign language in the Scotch school. As it happened there was no such chair in the university and the faculty were in a quandary. Finally some of the students volunteered to attend to the matter. In considerable doubt this plan was agreed to and the boys were given carte blanche to go ahead.

"There was an old one-eyed Scotch man, named Sandy McGee, around the university whom the students fixed upon to act as the professor of the sign language, and he was told of the plan. When they began to give him explicit directions he replied 'Dinna ye keer aboot me' and it was decided to leave him to himself.

"On the appointed day One-Eyed Sandy took his place very elaborately robed. The learned Chinaman entered with a very profound bow. Sandy went him one better. The Oriental produced an orange and Sandy flashed out a loaf of bread from a pouch in his clothes. One finger was raised and was answered by two, then three and Sandy, blushing red as a turkey cock, clenched his fist. The foreigner bowed deep and indicated that the interview was concluded. "On being sought by the students the Chinaman said that he had never met a man of such intelligent perception as the Scotchman who occupied the chair of sign language. He went on to interpret the conversation which had taken place between them. "The bow indicated the urbanity which should always exist between gentlemen of the highest learning and Sandy's bow expressed his concurrence in the sentiment. The orange stood for the principal fruit of China and the bread was the great product of Scotland. One finger stood for the one God, two for two God the Father and the God the Son, three for the Holy Trinity and the clenched fist for the three in one.

"Sandy was the interviewed and he made ready reply. His own bow in return to the salutation of the foreigner was to indicate that he would not be out-done. When the orange appeared Sandy did not know what to do so took out the loaf of bread to munch while he was thinking. The one finger was a reflection on Sandy's own ocular equipment and two gave forcible assertion that he could see more with one eye than the other with both. Three fingers was simply a numerical statement of the eyes which they both had together, and Sandy's clenched fist meant that he would soon 'beat his two eyes to one'.

"There is as great difference," concluded Mr. Hoard, "in interpretation and understanding in politics as in science."

Gold in Ancient River Beds in the Sierra Nevada.
For a number of years, geologists have been investigating the ancient river beds which occur so abundantly over the slopes of the Sierra Nevada and are of much importance on account of the auriferous material contained in their gravels. These ancient channels mark the course of former rivers, whose waters were directed in the lapse of time by alterations in the level of the land, or by other causes, dating back to Tertiary times, a late period in geologic history. During the time the streams were in existence, some of the gold-bearing rock of the region was washed into them and carried along by their waters, and in the sand and gravels of their beds portions of the precious metal still remain. A few months since, W. Lindgren, one of the geologists of the United States Geological Survey, made a careful review of previous investigations of the ancient channels, and visited many districts in the northern and southern portions of the gold belt. The information collected by him, will be compiled and later issued as a monograph, to be entitled the "Neocene rivers of the Sierra Nevada."

Meadow and Pasture Land in Germany
By reason of the steadily increasing importance to the agricultural industry in Germany, of the keeping of cattle, people have been brought to bestow greater attention upon meadow and pasture lands. The culture of such lands in Germany, has lately been given special consideration by the German Agricultural Society, and as the first result of these labors there has appeared No. 61 of the "Works of the German Agricultural Society," entitled "Contributions to the Knowledge of the Permanent Pasture Lands in the North-German Marshes," by Dr. Emmering and Dr. Weber. In this work are set forth researches into the botanical characteristics of the marsh pasture-lands and into the chemical composition of their soil. This inquiry is now also to be extended to the low grounds on the Weser, Vistula, and Elbe, and a further investigation of the meadow lands on the Oder and the Rhine will be kept in view. Dr. Weber-Bremer is again charged with the conduct of these inquiries.

Contributory Negligence.
Having occasion to shoot Mr. Helmer, the other day, Miss Yora Witts, of Ononda, lodged the bullet in the left hip of Mr. Leopold Myers. Undoubtedly Myers was guilty of contributory negligence. Seeing his great danger, he should have taken shelter in front of Helmer or fled to one of the adjoining counties.—New York Times.

A Tragedy.
"He beat his wife," I heard him say in tones of greatest glee. "He beat her badly yesterday, and we were there to see."

"The wretch," I cried, in righteous wrath. "What did he use, the dub?" And with a loud unfeeling laugh they said, "He used a club."

"And you who laugh, are worse than he," I cried and turned to go. "Ah, well," they said. "Twas fair, you see."

"For clubs were trumps, you know." —Nonpareil.

MINERS KILLED
BY EXPLOSION

Green Man Handles Powder
in Utah Mine with Disastrous Results.

THIRTY-FIVE WORKMEN DEAD

Brave Men Descend into Shaft to Rescue Victims and Are Overcome by Poisonous Gases—One Dies on Reaching Surface.

Park City, Utah, July 17.—Two powder magazines exploded in the 1,200 foot level of the Daly-West mine and gases, filling the mine, spread into the 600 foot level of the Ontario mine, killing at least thirty-five men in the two shafts and overcoming the majority of the 250 men at work.

The list of the dead may be greatly enlarged. Thirty-nine bodies have been hoisted to the surface. Two rescuers, asphyxiated in a desperate effort to save their comrades, died after being lifted from the shaft.

Both the Daly-West and the Ontario mines, two of the largest silver mines in Utah, are filled with poisonous gases and the mine managers have forbidden any further attempts at rescue for the present.

Town in Mourning.
The entire town is in mourning. Park Lake is inhabited only by miners and their families, and there is mourning in every house. Big crowds are gathered at the mine entrances, which are a mile apart.

The explosion occurred at 1 o'clock in the morning, when every person in town was either asleep or at work. The shock was so tremendous that it awakened every one within a radius of miles. Horses in the ore tunnel one and one-half miles away were killed by the force of the explosion.

The excitement was tremendous. There is not a person in the town but has relatives working in the mine. Women and children thronged to the Ontario shafthouse, which is midway between Park City and the Daly-West. All of the doctors in town were hurried to the mines. They did what they could to resuscitate the unconscious miners as they were taken out.

Gas Drives Out Rescuers.
At 4 o'clock a. m. twenty-seven men had been taken out of the mine dead, and several others had been recovered in a dazed condition. These were all brought out through the Ontario mine shaft. The 1,200 level of the Daly-West corresponds to and is connected by tunnel with the 600 level of the Ontario. At that time the accumulation of gas drove the rescuers from the mines.

In the Daly-West mine 150 men were at work. In the Ontario were nearly 100.
Although any attempt to enter the mines meant to face death, a rescue party, with faces bound in wet cloths, made a dash into the 600 foot level of the Ontario mine in the morning, and brought out several more bodies and several unconscious men.
The rescuers were gone for a long time, and when they returned three of them were carried out asphyxiated. The rest, after recovering from the effects of the gas, made a second attempt.

Perish Trying to Save Life.
John McLaughlin, who went down the second time, died on being brought to the surface. James Eckstrom, a member of the rescuing party, died shortly after noon. Jack Dalton, a Silver King miner, who also went down with the rescuers, is unconscious and expected to die.

The condition of the gas in the mine was such that the rescue work was abandoned.

Experienced miners say John Burg, the "powder monkey," was a green man, and had no business handling explosives. The rescue party found a hand and a foot, presumably those of Burg.

Thirty-three bodies in all were removed from the two mines. Officials of the Daly-West state that only three more bodies are in the mine. Rescuers declare they saw ten or twelve bodies.

Stock of Mine Falls.
Salt Lake, Utah, July 17.—On the local mining stock exchange Daly-West dropped from $54 to $48 a share, a loss of over $1,000,000 on the capital stock.

FORECASTS CENSUS OF 1910

Merriam Expects United States to Have 100,000,000 Population.

Duluth, Minn., July 17.—"In 1910, when our next census is taken, I expect the population of the United States will have reached the 100,000,000 mark," said William R. Merriam, director of the census.

"This will include our new possessions, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, but it will demonstrate in no uncertain terms what a world power this country has become."

"Have I any radical changes in the system in mind? Yes, there will be some changes. We can see now where improvements can be made in the methods used. One thing that I will over have in mind, however, is to cut down the expense of taking the census. The last one cost this country $12,000,000, an enormous sum. I know of several ways whereby this amount can be reduced and that will be my purpose."

Democratic Call.

Milwaukee, July 17.—A meeting of the Democratic state central committee has been called for Waukesha, July 22, to decide upon the date and place for the state convention. MINERS GATHER
AT INDIANAPOLIS

Majority of Delegates Appear to Oppose a General Strike.

NO NEED OF OUTSIDE HELP

President Mitchell Says It will Not Be Necessary to Ask for Assistance for the Anthracite Strikers at the Present Time.

Indianapolis, July 17.—The arrival of a majority of the delegates from the bituminous coal fields of the country to attend the convention of the United Mine Workers, which opened today, dispels all doubt as to the attitude of this class in respect to a general strike. All of the district presidents expressed opposition to a general suspension of coal mining except as a last resort to save the organization from destruction.

Some of the leaders, while announcing enthusiastic fealty to President Mitchell, declare that the life of the coal miners' union is not necessarily at stake in the present emergency. Some expressed the opinion that rather than ignore existing contracts with the mine owners, and thus lose the respect and sympathy of the public, it would be better to cut loose entirely from the anthracite miners and form an organization whose membership should be limited to bituminous miners alone.

Michigan Opposes Strike.

It also developed that the Michigan district, which was one of the petitioners for the calling of the convention and for this reason assumed to favor a general strike is opposed to extreme action till all other plans have failed and nothing short of stopping the coal output remains to be done to force a settlement.

President W. F. Williams of the Michigan district was very emphatic in the statement that the delegates from his state are opposed to a strike. "We have never said that we want a general suspension of coal mining," said he, "and the reason we joined in the call for the convention is that we thought the 147,000 miners in the anthracite fields are entitled to some consideration from the United Mine Workers. I suppose it is because we joined in the call that we have been regarded as wanting a strike, but this is not the case."

Mitchell is Reticent.

President Mitchell refused to make any prognostications regarding the convention or to state his own position in respect to the question of aiding the striking anthracite men by ordering a general suspension in the bituminous fields. He said the matter would lie wholly with the convention. When asked if the United Mine Workers would call upon other labor organizations for aid, he replied:

"In view of the magnitude of the strike, it may be that we shall have to call upon other labor organizations to help us before it is settled. The prospects in the anthracite strike are good. We are making gains."

No Need of Assistance.

Mr. Mitchell added that assistance is not now needed from any other organization, and this was construed by those present to mean that the necessity for a general strike does not, in his opinion, exist, and that he will so advise the convention when he delivers his address as president.

John P. Reese, president of the Iowa district, said that about 10 per cent of the delegates from his district have been instructed to favor a strike, but the other 90 per cent oppose taking such action till everything else has been tried, and failed. He was not prepared to say what the convention would do, but he believed the conservative sentiment would prevail.

In Danger.

Every one is in danger who neglects the warnings of declining health. The warnings are not as startling as the sudden shriek of a locomotive, but they are just as ominous. When the body begins to lose in flesh, when the cheek is hollow and the skin sallow it is Nature's warning that the body is failing of proper nourishment. It is a condition of "weak" stomach, and "weak" stomach soon involves other organs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote, but which have their origin in the disease of the stomach and its allied organs.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery" and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"Before I commenced to use your medicine I was in a bad condition (for eight years), and four doctors treated me," writes Mrs. Bettie Askew, of Garysburg, Northampton Co., N. C. "They, of course, gave me at the time some relief, but it did not last long. I was some days in my bed and some days I dragged about the house. I have used five bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and live of the 'Favorite Prescription' and four vials of the 'Pellea.' Now I feel like a new woman, and I want the world to know it."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages, paper binding, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only, or 31 stamps for it in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SPOONER SACRIFICED

LaFollette and his faction of the Republicans of Wisconsin are in session. LaFollette and his faction are dominating the true sentiment of the Republican party. They are forcing down the maws of the voters of the state their own vindictive doctrines. Urged on by an unseen motive of revenge they have practically repudiated one of the greatest statesmen that this country has ever seen. They have stepped over the line between state and national politics at one jump and by their action yesterday have cast a direct insult on the friend and advisor of McKinley, the departed martyr and President Roosevelt the chief executive. Bound down by the iron rule of the executive machine the delegates at the state convention have been forced to be party to the disgrace of the Republican party of Wisconsin, the sacrifice of United States Senator John C. Spooner, that personal grievances may be satisfied.

Men who have led the party through trying times. Men who have stood at the wheel and put their shoulder to the plow when necessity called were forced to sit quietly and see the younger element rush into the chasm of party disruption blindly. Fight as they did. Work as they would, they could avail nothing. The LaFollette element was predominant and controlled the actions of the minority. They refused to recognize the great services done the nation by Senator Spooner. They refused to see that the eyes of the whole country were upon them and in an unwarranted resolution they partially endorsed a man who is so far greater than they, that their mean souls cannot appreciate him.

It is humiliating to the voters at large. It is ungrateful to the state. It is a loss to the country that such actions should be taken. Senator John C. Spooner, Wisconsin's greatest statesman, an honor to the nation at large, is turned down by a convention of men who are doing the will of a one-man power seeking to revenge personal injuries at the expense of his state, his party and his country.

EFFECT OF DROUGHT.

It is now practicable to determine the effect of the drought of 1901 upon the export trade of 1902. The Treasury Bureau of Statistics has just completed its preliminary figures on the exports of breadstuffs and provisions, and, as they show about 97 per cent of the total exports, a reasonably accurate measurement of the exportation of articles affected by the drought of last year can now be made. The tables show the exports of quantities and value of corn and corn meal, oats and oatmeal, wheat flour and other breadstuffs, also live cattle, fresh beef and other beef products as well as other provisions. The direct and most marked reduction of course, is in corn, which was most largely affected by the drought of 1901. The exportation of corn at the principle ports, shown by the preliminary report of the Bureau of Statistics, amounts to 26 million bushels in the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1902, against 176 millions at the same ports in the preceding year, the value for 1902 being 16 million dollars against 82 millions in the preceding year, a reduction of 66 million dollars; the complete figures will probably show the total exports at about 27 million bushels, against 181 millions in the preceding year. Exportations of cornmeal have also fallen from 2 million dollars to 1 million, in 1902, making the total reduction in corn exports in round terms, as shown by the preliminary figures, 67 million dollars. Compared with the fiscal year 1900, the reduction is still greater; the corn exports of the fiscal year 1900 were the largest in the history of our export trade, having amounted to 213, 123,412 bushels, while for the year just ended, the complete figures will amount to about 27 million bushels.

The State Journal came out on the eve of the convention with a eulogy on Senator Whitehead. It proposes that he be nominated for the position of Lieutenant governor, to preside over the Senate. The Journal does mix things up wonderfully. It has ridden a LaFollette and Spooner horse a year and then when it found LaFollette meant to throw John C. Spooner down, it made a quick flop and said "real mean things" about LaFollette. If he dared to such a thing as that. Once the State Journal was a power in the state, now—well, the people smile at the majority of the editorials.

Germany now asserts that the United States' navy has the best equipped guns in the world. Germany must have been talking to some of the Spanish Admirals, who can vouch for that fact. They can also vouch that the United States has some of the best marksmen in the world behind those guns.

The Chicago strike is over. After ten days of useless quarrelling, loss of wages and thousands of dollars to the manufacturers and wholesalers, the strikers gave in. Went back to work by the thousands and trains started running again.

Talk of party harmony. Talk of the forgiving spirit of the LaFollette republicans, then look at the action of the committee appointed by a LaFollette chairman and the doings of the whole convention.

Up in Oshkosh they claimed weeks ago, that Bob could open the gubernatorial jack pot with a pair of nines, hold up a kicker and then show his hand after the game. Well, Bob did it all right and the bluff went and he made good.

Did you know that the great drought we are having this summer, was broken by a rain storm this morning? Iowa also had a slight fall of rain last week, that did the farmers' crops good.

Mary Mac Lane has decided she is not a genius. May be she is not, but she has been a mint for the publisher who printed her book and then successfully advertised it. Mary is a wonder, if she is not a genius.

"Bobs" came home was received by the Prince. The band played lively tunes and the papers said lots of things about the great hero. Now "Bobs" is not needed most urgently, they have forgotten him.

The next time any one complains of the hot weather, just tell him that the earth only gets one 1-2,000, 000th of the real heat of old Sol. He will feel cooler right away.

Men like ex-Governor Hoard, seem to be lost in the LaFollette faction of the G. O. P. The ex-Governor is man above the crowd he has been associating with.

The resignation of Lord Salisbury from the English cabinet, marks the disappearance of the last of the great Victorian statesmen from the field of English politics.

Trinidad has become tired of old England's neglect of its affairs and now mentions that it would like to come under the protection of the wing of old Uncle Sam's Eagle.

It is too bad that Carrie Nation could not have been in attendance at Madison to have helped the LaFollette men celebrate their great victory.

Sir Thomas Lipton thinks that he will float another of his advertising schemes in the shape of a boat, to try and capture the American cup.

The whistling of a young girl in a New York church, reminds one that the churches are pushing the vaudeville shows pretty hard just now.

Lord Salisbury refused a peerdom. Say, but that must have made Willie Waldorf Astor mad.

Cleveland has banished fortune tellers and clairvoyants from its limits. Good for Cleveland. Who is next?

Even the blood hounds have caught the fever of losing scent in the case of elusive Tracy.

PRESS COMMENT

Marshallfield Times: Notwithstanding the conciliatory attitude of many of the LaFollette papers and leaders the governor is still firm in his adherence to the Stevens primary election law, the chief point of difference between the opposing factions, and in spite of the fact that this measure has been repeatedly repudiated by the legislature and the people of the state, will insist upon a resolution at the state convention demanding its passage. His persistence in this matter bids fair to perpetuate the fight between the Republicans of the state and endanger the success of the party at the polls, but the modern Robespierre has set his clenched fist to force his pet upon the state in utter disregard of consequences, and will not yield a point. This favorite measure, of LaFollette's mind is not a creation of his own mind, but was taken like his anti-corporation and taxation ideas from the hair-brained Populists of the west who have in many trials proved to be utterly worthless. If harmony is to be restored in the Republican ranks the governor must forget his plan establishing a life-long political machine by means of the Stevens law.

Boston Transcript: One question that presents itself with regard to the ships in the combine which, though owned by Americans, fly the British flag, is with regard to their national status in the event of Great Britain being at war with any other nation. The generally held principle is that the nationality of a ship is determined by her flag and register, but of late, there has been some dissent from this, it being maintained or rather suggested, that proprietorship as well as the flag, must be considered. This is one of those questions that after all are not settled so much by jurists as by nations strong enough not only to make, but to maintain precedents.

New York Tribune: Pullman car cleaners, who have been on a strike, have returned to work, but Pullman porters are complaining of the scarcity of tips in these current days and nights. Tips, however, were always out of harmony with the independence and self-respect of true Americans. Good pay for good work, with no unearned gratuities, in hotels, restaurants and everywhere else, should be the custom. Tips are degrading, both to givers and receivers, and the whole system of tipping is unsound and inexcusable. It cannot endure.

Marquette Eagle, Stalwart Rep.: The idea of harmony is a myth. With the ideas advanced by LaFollette in the ascendancy there can be no mutualizing among honest Stalwarts. The battle must be fought out. The republican papers of the state who have opposed the governor and his policies as a matter of principle cannot be expected to give hearty assent to the very things they have condemned in unmeasured terms. After LaFollette is nominated they will most of them doubtless support his candidacy as a party necessity, but they will not do it in a hearty manner.

Ellsworth Herald: John C. Spooner is clearly the greatest statesman in this nation today. This is the place assigned him by the leaders of the land and by all the leading journals. And yet here at home he is decryd by a pack of snarling office-holding, office seeking politicians of the Haugan stripe, egged upon by a few shrewd, envious, disappointed men, and at least one millionaire who hopes to crowd brains out of the United States senate by the potency of wealth. Will the Republicans of Wisconsin submit to this shame?

Marquette Eagle: The LaFollette leaders won in the just closed campaign, by misrepresentation and by false promises. They have broken them at the start, and no faith can ever be placed in them again. Isaac Stephenson is practically announced as a candidate for the senate, by the action of the (county) convention, which was ruled by him today, and the campaign, which was regarded as closed, is really but just opened.

Marion Advertiser: About every nominee for the assembly to date, is pledged to support Spooner for reelection. Now let it be said that LaFollette will be re-elected governor. Which has won the greatest victory, the Half-Breeds or Stalwarts? The executive will not cut much of a pigeon-wing about the capitol, while, very likely, Mr. Spooner will be the president's legal adviser so long as he may enjoy good health.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: The Republican is the only party which has the honesty, the courage and the brains to deal with the trusts effectively, as the record since 1887, when the trusts first began to appear, proves. On the true issue, there is a magnificent victory in store for the Republican party in the elections of 1902.

Philadelphia Bulletin: That action by the national law-making body for the purpose of dealing effectively with such combines as the Beef Trust, would receive the support of the great majority of the American people, is obvious. But while Mr. Roosevelt may not be disposed to ignore the fact that his policy would help the Republican party, there is no reason for accusing him of pushing it to the front solely for partisan purposes.

Elkhorn Independent: Apropos of the question whether Gov. LaFollette would wish to see Senator Spooner retired, or not, we do not believe that any one man, nor ten, for that matter, in the state, could accomplish the defeat of Senator Spooner. He belongs to the nation as well as Wisconsin, and the people of this great state will insist, through their senators and assemblymen, that he is to be returned to the senate.

Eau Claire Leader: The governor has now the chance of his lifetime and it is to be hoped he will rise to the dignity of the occasion. Let him next week not only endorse Spooner but insist that he shall return to the United States senate. Then let him keep his primary election lobby in abeyance so that it will not get above the wishes of the people. He could also afford to unbind a little and see if he could not harmonize the Republican party would once more show an unbroken front.

Oshkosh Northwestern, Half-Breed Rep.: The Harper letter goes to an extreme which is decidedly objectionable, both to the opponents of the governor and to many of his supporters as well. It breathes an open defiance and disregard of consequences which will injure instead of aid the governor. Gov. LaFollette should call off his fool friends before they make a bad batch of the whole business.

Neenah News, Half-Breed Rep. The circular was full of truth and a timely service on the federal office holders of the state who have been violating the requirements of the civil service rules by their questionable work in Wisconsin political affairs, and especially in their hostility to Gov. LaFollette, that further foolishness on their part will not be tolerated without protest.

Milwaukee Journal: There is a shortage of about 35 per cent. in the broom crop this year. Still the Wisconsin Democrats think they are going to get a new one without much trouble and one which will make a clean sweep.

Milwaukee News: Your "Uncle Ike" does not intend "to hold the bag" for "reform" while John Spooner walks off with the plum, Isaac bought a gold brick on the "open ballot" business once, and it came high, but he regards the experience as having taken him out of the hayseed class.

Ashtland Press: The action of the convention in the adoption or rejection of Spooner resolutions, in connection with its treatment of the contesting delegates, will clearly demonstrate one way or another, the governor's position on the question of harmony in the party.

Oshkosh Northwestern: A good many men will wish a few months hence that they had saved a part of the money spent in sending their families to some fashionable summer resort, to help pay for the winter's coal bill.

Milwaukee Journal: A Rose is willing to get along without a Wall to climb on and the Wall is willing to be beautified by something else than a tall growing Rose. A Bird might set off the Brown scenery.

Sparta Herald: The democrats who have so vigorously espoused the cause of LaFollette in the late unpleasantness ought to turn in and help elect him; but we are afraid they won't.

AUNT CARRIE GOING TO COME WILL VISIT THE BOWER CITY

The Kansas Saloon Smasher Now
Has Designs on Janesville.

If Janesville has any "johns"; if there are any saloons where the young men of the city obtain liquid refreshment; if there are any fine plate glass to be found behind the bars of the buffets the proprietors had best close up or go out of business temporarily for Carrie Nation has her eyes on Janesville. Not only has she her eyes set on this pretty little man here to arrange for her appearance at Athletic Park on Friday of next week.

Not only will the famous Carrie Nation come to Janesville herself but she will bring with her the little hatchet that has done such disastrous work in Kansas. While her manager says that she will not smash any saloons while in the city Carrie can not always be depended upon to do as she is bid and Janesville saloon men had best look out.

Needs the Money
Aunt Carrie and her little hatchet are sighing like Alexander the Great for more worlds to conquer. She has demolished Kansas saloons. She has served terms without number in jails throughout the country and now she is out after the money and more fame.

Chance For Janesville
Her press representative arrived in the city yesterday. He was enthusiastic over the great and glorious opportunity that was offered to Janesville to see the famous woman. He thought that it would be just the thing for the street car company to take her up and have her at some park where the thousands, whom he knew wanted to see her could ride to and hear her talk.

Is Harmless
Aunt Carrie, as he explained to Mr. Blabon, acting manager of the Street Car company, does not create any disturbances while on her tours but confines her whirlwind methods to Kansas. He also said that Aunt Carrie is much in earnest in her work and is an interesting talker. But Mr. Blabon had no park at which she could be exhibited. Not only did he have no place where she might tell of her work, but he did not know any resort where she would be appreciated.

No Good Place
Crystal Springs park on a Sunday afternoon was suggested and possibly such an arrangement for the amusement of the visitors could be fixed up for some time during the coming month. The Fair Grounds was also suggested as was the base ball park. Both of these places, however, have their disadvantages, there are no saloons in close proximity unless it be the brewery at the foot of Main street.

If Carrie becomes worked up into a frenzy of reform she will doubtless like to demonstrate just how she does things up and creates "hard times" in Kansas and then she will have the brewery handy to begin on.

Wants to Help
Mrs. Nation is in the business now for the money that there is in it. She has her business manager, her advance man and press agent. She and her little hatchet are out after the coin. Evidently she has heard of Janesville and longs for a chance to help the city to reform or the saloon keepers to receive advertising and have a good excuse for improving their saloons.

An Element of Doubt
While her genial press agent, Mr. W. H. Wright, or her manager, J. E. Furlong, assure the proprietors of parks that she is harmless outside of Kansas, still there is an element of doubt and if she comes to Janesville things might be lively for some people.

Was Badly Shot
An Irishman fighting under the British flag was caught on the plain by a party of Boers. He refused to surrender and resisted until he was shot in a dozen places and left for dead. He was found the next day and carried to a field hospital. As soon as he recovered consciousness a nurse asked him if he were badly shot. "Badly shot?" he replied. "I am so full of bullet holes that the man in the next cot has caught cold from the draughts through me."

Naval Officers Not Good Dressers.
A deal of friction between the army and the navy has been caused in London by the publication of a remark by an army officer overheard in a club window in Pall Mall. Some naval officers were passing and the critical military observer exclaimed: "I have never seen a naval officer with a well cut or well-fitting pair of trousers." And now the fight is on in the newspapers and is raging with much bitterness.

William Lyons
William A. Lyons, a well-known resident of Otter Creek, died yesterday morning at six o'clock, his death being the result of general ill health from which he had suffered since last February. Deceased was seventy-two years of age and was a native of New York, having been born in that state, August 19, 1830.

In 1844, when he was but a boy of fourteen, he came to Wisconsin and he has resided in this state ever since. On February 22, 1855, he was married to Lois D. Bassett, of Koshkonong. After their marriage, they resided for two years in Adams county after which they returned to Otter Creek where the family home has been for the past thirty-five years.

Deceased leaves a wife and two sons, Charles Lyons of Fort Atkinson, and Frank Lyons, who lives at home. Two brothers and one sister at Richmond, Va., also survive. Swindling the Dead.
A curious industry in China is the manufacture of mock money for offerings to the dead. The pieces are only half the size of the real coins, but the dead are supposed not to know the difference. The dummy coins are made of tin, hammered to the thickness of paper and stamped out to the size required.

LOCAL SIDE OF CHICAGO STRIKE BUSINESS WAS NOT HINDERED

Consignments Every Day in Some Way or Other—Now All Right.

After the ten days' strike of the Chicago freight handlers conditions among the local dealers have resumed their former status and the general feeling among the merchants in the city is the effect of the strike on the local people has been inconsiderable. There was a pretty black cloud in the horizon for a time.

Not Once Shut Off
There has been no time during the continuance of the strike that there have been no Chicago cars received in the city and the smaller dealers have received the bulk of the damage that has been done. That is to say that some of the retail dealers who had made small orders received absolutely nothing, while the wholesale people whose orders were much larger would receive a part at least of their shipments. This was partly due to the fact that the larger handlers dealt in carload consignments and also to the fact that special efforts were made at the Chicago end to have the goods shipped through.

Came By Express
All of the really important shipments were sent through by express and while this meant an additional cost to the consignee, the increase was hardly worth considering during the short length of time that the handlers and the teamsters were out. Plans were made by which it would be possible to get goods through in any emergency but it was almost unnecessary to use them. To a certain extent for a few days some shipments were made by water, and one or two other schemes were devised. Barring these exceptions the shipments did not depart from the ordinary to any appreciable degree.

Brain Fag and Worry
The greatest evil resultant from the strike was in the worry and brain-fag of the dealers who were looking for a long and disastrous battle royal between the employers and employees. Plans were made by which it would be possible to get goods through in any emergency but it was almost unnecessary to use them. To a certain extent for a few days some shipments were made by water, and one or two other schemes were devised. Barring these exceptions the shipments did not depart from the ordinary to any appreciable degree.

DR. J. B. WHITING IS COMPLIMENTED PRAISED FOR ABLE TRIBUTE

His Postprandial Address at a Milwaukee Banquet Delighted Guests of Distinction

Dr. J. B. Whiting, Sr., has returned home from Milwaukee where he went to attend a banquet given by the medical profession of Milwaukee in honor of Dr. Marks. The banquet, which was a very swell affair, took place at Whitefish Bay, Monday evening, the company of guests being a select one representative of the intellectual aristocracy of Milwaukee.

Dr. Whiting was one of the postprandial speakers and his tribute to Dr. Marks was highly praised by the assembled guests and by the press of Milwaukee as one of the happiest responses of the evening. The closing sentiment which the Gazette is pleased to reproduce, attracted special notice and commendation.

Turning to the guest of the evening Dr. Whiting said: "My venerable and worthy friend, you and I are standing very near that mystic line which separates the present from the future. I am nearer than you—so near that with hushed breath I sometimes try to look into the beyond and devoutly ask 'What?' No answer comes back but I believe in God, his mercy, his goodness, his loving kindness. And I believe if we do our duty here, it will be well in the Hereafter. One of the beautiful poets, in the last days of a long life, wrote thus:

"Oh Life! We have been long together
In sunshine and in stormy weather,
Now, when thou goest give little warning,
Say not good-night; but in that Brighter clime bid me good-morning."

"There is something beautiful in the thought of this passing from the natural to the spiritual world. My venerable friend, the rapid cycles are hurrying us onward. You are standing today where I stood but yesterday and in the swift coming tomorrow you will be standing where I am standing today and I shall have passed on. As you near the line, may you be sustained by an unflinching trust in the great Master of Life and when the supreme moment comes may you lie down to pleasant dreams in the full belief that the gates of the Eternal City will be wide open to receive you."

Mc Cue & Buss,

John Morgan's Rough Riders

(Copyright, 1902, by G. L. Kilmer.)

RIDING on a raid in wartime gives the troopers engaged a taste of the real romance and excitement of war. If the ride happens to be over the border into a peaceful territory of the enemy, as was the case when John Morgan's Kentucky band crossed Cumberland river from Tennessee into their native state July 8, 1862, so much the better for romance. And there were enough Yankee swords and bayonets along the route to furnish excitement for the invading host.

Morgan's men were Kentuckians who had gone over to the Confederacy, and their state remaining neutral, the only way to serve the southern cause was to fight with the armies outside of it. After the southern repulse at Shiloh in April the leaders in the west once more cast their eyes eagerly upon Kentucky, which had been wholly lost to them by the victories of Thomas and Grant in January and February, 1862. General Bragg headed his battalions toward the Kentucky border. His starting point was Chattanooga, on the southern border of Tennessee. About the center of east Tennessee the Confederates, under General Kirby Smith, held Knoxville, and Morgan rode out as the advance guard of Smith's to test the temper of the Kentucky people and the mettle of the boys in blue who were guarding the strategic points beyond the Ohio.

With 900 troopers Morgan forded the Cumberland the afternoon of July 8. A band of Federal soldiers had watched the approach of the invaders, but kept out of sight, and Morgan rushed forward to the first post of the enemy which lay in his pathway. This was the village of Tompkinsville, garrisoned by about 200 men of the Ninth Pennsylvania cavalry under Major T. J. Jordan.

It was Jordan's band that Morgan heard of, but didn't see at the ford. Jordan had news of Morgan's coming and went to the river to meet him. It was all a game of hide and seek, for Jordan marched back to Tompkinsville, seeing nothing of the enemy.

Early on the morning of July 9 the Pennsylvania troopers were aroused to prepare for action. While they were feeding and cleaning their mounts the camp was alarmed by picket firing out on the river road. Before the horses could be saddled Jordan's pickets reported a heavy attack, and Morgan's line could already be seen deploying around the camp. In an hour the place was surrounded, and Morgan's horse battery began to toss shells into Tompkinsville.

While the guns were playing on the astounded Federals the Kentucky troopers formed for a charge and dashed in. Major Jordan saw that he was outnumbered and gave the order to retreat. Morgan had sent the Texas rangers around to the rear of Jordan's line, but the Pennsylvanians charged gallantly through. The rangers rallied and pursued the retreating Federals, and in a rear guard fight Jordan was captured and Lieutenant Sullivan, commanding the firing line, was killed.

Within a few hours after Morgan's blow at Tompkinsville the telegraph wires were hot with dispatches telling

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

July 8-13, 1862

and a scene and the pandemonium he could stir up in the enemy's lines was more tempting to him than battles.

When setting out on his raiding trip to the old Kentucky home of himself and his troopers, Morgan called to his side an expert telegraph operator, who, like his leader, was a joker and a daredevil at the same time. George A. Ellsworth, familiar by long service in the west with the lines in Kentucky, Ellsworth proved an ally equal to a battalion of soldiers. The news within the Federal lines that Morgan headed for Glasgow after taking in Tompkinsville was correct. With Ellsworth and fifteen troopers the raiding chief rode forward, and on the outskirts of Glasgow the operator dismounted, took down the telegraph wire and connected his pocket instrument. Seated there under the guard of the troopers, he took off all the dispatches passing through.

At first the telegraph office at Louisville called up the office at Nashville, and Ellsworth intercepted every word. The tenor of the dispatches showed that Morgan was loose in the Blue Grass region, and orders between banks and commercial houses to send money and other valuables by railroad were countermanded. Louisville also sent Nashville the general news of the day, and thus war dispatches from Washington and New York were placed in the hands of John H. Morgan, the Kentucky raider.

Having drained Louisville and stolen the operator's signals and signatures, Ellsworth ended for the day by sending a bogus dispatch dictated by Morgan. It purported to come from Nashville and stated that Forrest's Tennessee cavalry had attacked Murfreesboro, Tenn., routed the Federals and was moving on Nashville. Morgan was said to be in Tennessee co-operating with Forrest. This dispatch was signed with the name of the Federal provost marshal at Nashville, Stanley Matthews, and at a glance seemed more credible than those earlier dispatches which located Morgan in Kentucky. The Federals in Kentucky of course had no knowledge of Bragg's intended invasion of the state, and it was rather comforting than otherwise to think that Morgan was not over the border on an extensive foray.

Morgan rode into Glasgow at midnight the day of Ellsworth's telegraphic exploit and captured in the town 200 rifles, which were needed to supply the unarmed men who had followed him over the border. The whole of southern Kentucky was alert, and every dispatch which passed between the commanders of the military posts scattered along the railroads mentioned Morgan's band, invariably magnifying its numbers, its audacity and its conquests.

Morgan's Kentuckians have sometimes been recklessly and unfairly classed with those guerrilla bands that wage war more in the spirit of vandals than of organized and disciplined soldiers. The command first and last embraced the best young bloods of Kentucky, many of them graduates of the highest eastern colleges and others too young to be graduated. Among the leaders were Willie Breckinridge, Hart Gibson of Yale, at one time Morgan's adjutant general; Colonel Griggsby, of an old Virginia family and a graduate of the University of Virginia; Colonel Chennault, Colonel Tucker, Colonel Cleary Coleman, Governor McCreary and scores of others whose names are prominent in the west and, in fact, all over the Union as honorable and active citizens.

The ranks of the corps at the beginning and all through its career were filled with the flower of the youth around Louisville and the Blue Grass country where Morgan was known. Morgan took naturally to raiding because of his love of horses and his experience in the Mexican war, where he had commanded a company. His men had early been taught horsemanship, in fact born in the saddle. With or without saddle or cringle it was all the same.

The name of Morgan had become known to the Federal guards in Kentucky long before his advent in July, 1862, as a raider. He had been in the field a year at the head of Kentucky horsemen, first leading a company, then a battalion, afterward a regiment, and now a brigade. With here and there a surprise of some isolated garrison, a dashing skirmish or a stand up fight, it was easy to impress the imagination and make the raider's name a terror. And so while Morgan struck, and his relentless ally, Ellsworth, stole dispatches and sent out bogus ones, the alarm spread all over the country, and even Washington awoke to the startling fact that mischief was brewing in Kentucky. On the 13th of July this characteristic dispatch was sent from the White House to the headquarters of the Federal army at Corinth, Miss.:

Major General Halleck—They are having a stampede in Kentucky. Please look to it.

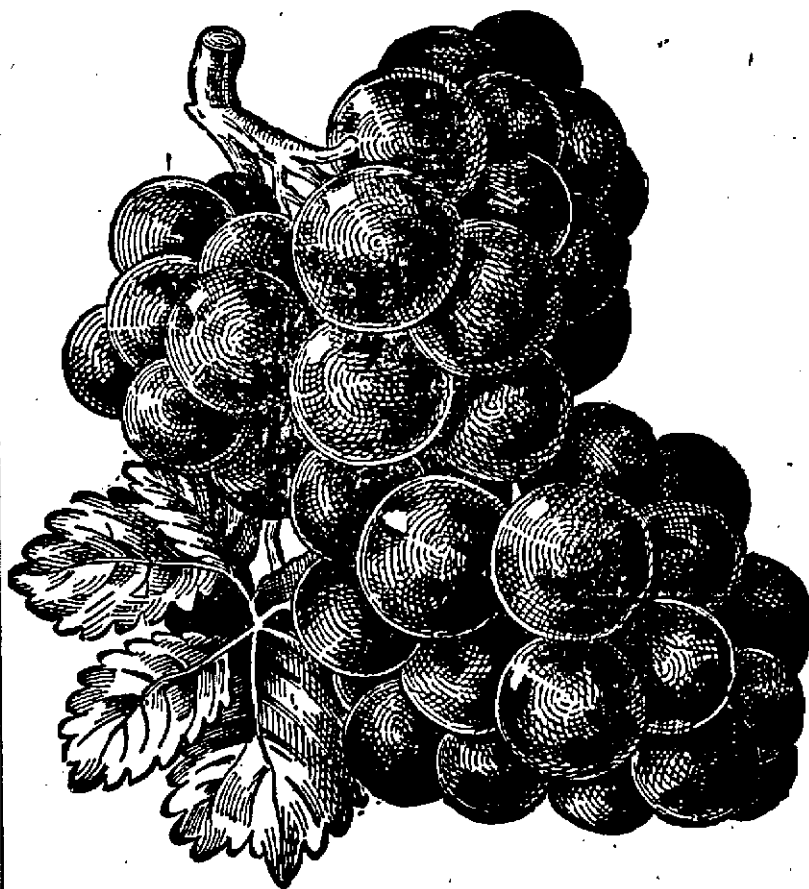

On the same day a dispatch from Louisville, signed by the Federal commander in Kentucky, had informed the war department at Washington of the raid in the following terms:

The Confederates undoubtedly have control of telegraph all around us. There is great danger in Kentucky.

J. T. BOYLE, Brigadier General.

At that time Morgan was on the Louisville and Lexington road, threatening both cities, and riding farther and farther toward the interior.

Think what it means to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

We have secured the agency for this city and know of the great work it is doing. If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

THESE ARE STRONG TESTIMONIALS.

For a mild Laxative and a general Family Medicine for man, woman or child, I consider Mull's Grape Tonic the superior of any remedy. It's pleasant to take, prompt in action, and the results are wonderful. Its power in building up a weak and run-down system is greater than any Cod Liver Oil preparation. I've tried them all. I write this hoping that some of my friends will read and profit by it.

MRS. WM. STILES, Glenwood Springs, Colo.

I was an object of pity, for my suffering was great, before I began using Mull's Grape Tonic. The pains over my hips and in my back were frightful. The doctor pronounced it Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble, but he did not help me. The neighbors had given me up once this summer, but, thank God, I am here yet, and I know Mull's Grape Tonic saved me. God bless you and your wonderful medicine.

MRS. M. G. HONEYCUTT, Center, Texas.

GENTLEMEN: I send you the picture of my little daughter, Nettie, who has taken Mull's Grape Tonic and been greatly benefited by it. She was troubled with catarrh in the head, and her general health was very poor. Since taking this medicine she is much stronger, and her catarrh is nearly gone. I will have her continue using your tonic until she is perfectly well.

MATHESON'S SPEECH. FOR WHITEHEAD

All civilized nations have their heroes, whose deeds have been told in story and in song. From the blue skies of Italy and the vine-clad hills of France to the frozen shores of Scandinavia and the granite peaks of Scotland, deeds of chivalry and heroism have excited the admiration of succeeding generations. The German, the Dane, the Norwegian, the Swede, the Englishman and Irishman, with the peoples of other lineage, relate with pride the virtues of their ancestors. We, as Americans, are not less proud of what our Republic has accomplished.

The German has a justifiable pride in his fatherland. Across from Bingen on the lovely Rhine, up the cultivated terraces of the Neiderwald, is the National Monument erected to commemorate the union of the German States. This monument, crowned with bronze figures of Bismarck, Von Moltke, the beloved William the First, and other great heroes and leaders, overlooks the Rhine, and reminds the German people that the noble river below is theirs, the regions beyond are theirs, and if they are ever as strong, faithful and honest as they are today, the river and the fields will descend to their sons forever. Jacob Rits, born in Denmark, noble son of a noble people, tells us in the story of his life how, in the making of an American, Danish history and Danish tradition have had their part. Hendrick Vergeland, a great statesman, has given to Norway and Sweden a constitution, under which they thrive and prosper today as a united nation. These nations of Europe, Germany, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, have given to this state some of her most useful and influential citizens, pouring into our life their rich and invigorating blood.

Tales of Scottish chieftains and stories of Caledonian daring stir the heart. The Highlands of Scotland, with bleak and rugged peaks, frowning crags, and precipices, beautiful lochs and rushing torrents, have sent forth, not only sturdy bands of warriors, but men who have fought mighty religious battles and stood firmly for their faith. Bannockburn, Cambracken and Stirling, Wallace, Bruce, Douglas, and Argyll, will ever excite admiration in the minds of men. After Robert Bruce had fought his battles, freed his people, and attained the crown, he died, having left a request that his heart be embalmed and carried to the Holy Land. Beside him, while he lived, was his faithful friend and sturdy warrior, "Good Sir James Douglas," who endeavored to carry out the request of his dead chieftain and king, and started across Europe with his precious treasure. He died upon the way, but, so long as "Black Douglas" lived, the heart of Bruce, though lifeless flesh, led him and his followers on to acts of daring. Two influences inspired Douglas and his men. One was the memory of Robert Bruce; the other the principles for which he gave his life. One was the person—the man; the other that for which the man stood.

Historic records of such character arouse the emotions and affect the sentiment. We are not here to speak of men who stand on mountain peaks above their fellows in the valley, but of men who are among us, whom we wish for a time to clothe with responsibility and leadership. We are not so much interested in battles and warriors today, as we are interested in the conditions immediately surrounding us, and with the practical concerns of our daily life. We refer to the heroes of other days as types of men who are heroes in this day, because they perform well their civic duties, and are loyal to the noblest ideals of citizenship. Among men of this character, we point with pride to Theodore Roosevelt, our worthy President and strenuous leader. We do not think so much of him as the man who led his forces up San Juan hill, as of the frank and courageous leader, who takes the people into his confidence and meets 20th century problems with brave heart and steady hand. His loyalty to Republican principles, his services, and his character, entitle him to nomination and election in 1904.

We present to this Convention as our candidate for Governor, a man in whom we have implicit confidence, an upon whom we stake our faith. He is capable, patriotic and a man of the highest training, education, and culture. More than that, he possesses integrity and courage of the highest order. He is in sympathy with the poor and those who have made their own ways in life. He is in every sense a self-made man. Property and possessions have never come to him by inheritance or gift. He passed through Williston Seminary, he graduated from Yale University, having worked his way through both institutions, dependent on his own magnificent health and the labor of his hands and brain. There is nothing in his life for which we make apology. We point to his record, in private life as a business man and without fear. We are confident an intelligent and unbiased examination will meet the test of your approval. He is true to his party allegiance, and we reaffirm that allegiance today. We have come before this convention with one who possesses the qualifications which a governor should have, and who has the ability, the tact, the consideration for others, the statesmanship and leadership, which will give us a prosperous and united party. Our candidate comes from an important section of the state. He is from the rich fields, the prosperous cities and villages of Rock County, with its strong Republican majorities, its education and intelligent people, its vast agricultural, mercantile, commercial, and manufacturing interests.

Certain questions are before the people, and it is well that we express our attitude upon them. The question of taxation is one of vital interest to all, and presents intricate problems. We realize that the burden of taxation is not equally and justly distributed; that methods and laws have many defects. These difficulties must be remedied, and will be remedied, in the process of time. Such questions cannot be settled quickly; for they require deep and long continued study. They must be wrought out with patience; and, in the end, justice and equality will prevail. It is easy to say that the rich are unfair, that corporations are unjust, and that trusts are rapidly usurping our most cherished liberties. Whether such statements are true or not, the remedy is not in reiteration. It is not hard to say that the poor are oppressed, that the multitudes must be enlightened and enriched. It is much more difficult to work out solutions of these problems, with earnest heart and persevering study. Words are useless, except as they have behind them and beneath them actions of merit. Indeed, words are unnecessary where men put forth their efforts and write their beliefs in the works which they do.

The principles of the Frost Mortgage Taxation Bill, passed by the last Legislature, have our approval. Every effort should be made to devise a system of taxation which will furnish correct and effective methods for the taxation of intangible personal property, without, on the one hand, driving capital from our state, or, on the other, increasing the contribution of the borrower. Corporate taxation furnishes hard problems, but when, under the guidance of the Tax Commission, the way of reform is pointed out, corporations must expect to bear their just burden of taxation.

The amount of taxation is governed by legislative appropriations. Economy in expenditure reduces the burden on the tax payer. We stand for economy, specific appropriations, and a legislative budget; and our candidate, if elected, will hold himself accountable for economy in disbursements, capitalists and corporations, which develop our resources and carry on our business enterprises, are entitled to fair and impartial treatment. At the same time, they must be held within power limitations and must not be allowed to combine in such a way as to crush out competition and enrich themselves by exacting unjust profits from the people under whose authority they exist. And to the end that the tax payer may have accurate information and exercise an intelligent oversight, we demand that the accounts of the departments of government be so kept that the average citizen may comprehend them.

We present to you a candidate who does not claim to have a present panacea for all the ills of taxation, but who does claim to have studied the question deeply and carefully. He is willing to give himself to the working out of problems of taxation, as best he can, for the interests of all the people. If any one man has been identified with taxation reform in this state for the past six years, that man is our candidate. Aside from the Governor who recommended the Tax Commission, he certainly had as much to do as any other with its creation. He has stood close to the Tax Commissioners, and has endeavored faithfully to carry out their desires. He has taken no step in our legislation halls, without their concurrence and approval. So, we as men who believe in him, and whose stand here and ask for his nomination, declare our belief in real tax reform and our intention of supporting the Tax Commission in the future, as in the past. Tax reform in this state must come largely through the use of knowledge brought together by the Tax Commission, and to that Commission we pledge our united confidence and support.

We are not satisfied with our present caucus laws. We are prepared to do our duty as to legislation which may be needed to safeguard our political nominations, and enhance the purity of political meetings. Every citizen must be upheld in his right freely to express his choice at any meeting of a party in which, by reason of conviction, intention, and honest affiliation, he is entitled to participate. In so far as these things are left to the control of the parties, the Legislature should supplement this control with such police regulations as may be necessary.

Our forefathers wisely divided the powers and functions of government into departments. These departments serve as checks upon each other. Authority primarily rests with the people, but they have delegated their great powers to the judicial, legislative, and executive departments. The perpetuity of our liberties depends upon a proper balance between these, and the moment one department encroaches upon another, our political freedom is endangered. So we are here, standing for the government of Washington and Hamilton, Lincoln and Sumner, Blaine and McKinley. We have not yet forgotten the principles of Republicanism and freedom taught us by Howe and Carpenter, Rusk and Fairchild. We admire the sturdiness and manhood of our President. We recognize his independence, but, while he insists upon the prerogatives of his own department, he, with wisdom and true manhood, recognizes the authority of the other branches with which his is co-ordinate. In this state, as in every other state, there must be maintained a proper balance between the departments of our government. There must be no trespassing by one upon the other. The relations between them must be characterized by fair and courteous treatment. Only thus can we have a successful government, and for these things, we stand with unqualified determination.

In this convention we have more than issues; we have a man upon whom national events depend. Surely I am in accord with every delegate on this floor when I declare the singular usefulness at Washington of Hon. John C. Spooner. He belongs not alone to Wisconsin, but to the whole United States. He is not only a lawyer and statesman of transcendent ability, but he stands at the right hand of our President, a power in the United States Senate, and an authority upon questions of constitutional and international law. Withal, he is a man of kindly and genial disposition, of clean and wholesome character, one to whom we may all point with pleasure and admiration. Wisconsin honors him as a favorite son, but he likewise honors Wisconsin in the distinction which comes to him and in the service which he renders in these important times. There should be no question among the Republicans of Wisconsin as to the return of Mr. Spooner to the United States Senate as his own successor.

Our candidate stands for the principles we have enunciated and for Mr. Spooner. He is our choice to advocate needed reforms. He is before you, without any personal political pledge to fulfill. He has no scores to settle, no enemies to be either routed or placated. He belongs to no class. He believes in equal rights to all. He favors no class, but is loyal to the great body of Wisconsin citizens. His experience in public life, his earnest study of the great problems of governments, his clean American manhood, his physical strength, his mental endowments, his interest in all things and all classes, fit him, as we believe few other men now prominent in State affairs are fitted, for the high office of Governor of Wisconsin. Therefore, in the name of the farmers, the manufacturers, the commercial, industrial and mining interests of Wisconsin; on behalf of all classes, whether rich or poor; in the name of a united party; in the name of real substantial reform; in the name of the young men of the State of Wisconsin who will certainly follow a leader of merit and force, of character and ability, I present to you, as your nominee for Governor, the Honorable John M. Whitehead, of Janesville.

PRESS COMMENT.
Chicago Inter Ocean: Of course, they will get Tracy finally, but it looks as though this will not happen until Tracy gets some more of them.

Stevens Point Journal, Stalwart Rep.: The Democratic press would no doubt like to foment a bolt, but there will be none.

Sparta Herald: The Democrats who have so vigorously espoused the cause of La Follette in the late unpleasantness ought to turn in and help elect him; but we are afraid they won't.
